REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

Claims 1-5 are allowed, as the prior art of record does not teach or suggest a method for angiographic MRI scanning of a body of a patient lying on a table, using a magnetic resonance imaging apparatus having a basic field magnet that generates a basic magnetic field in a homogeneity volume, wherein the method including steps for simultaneously uniformly shifting the phase-coding gradient and the frequency-coding gradient in conformity with moving the table so that the block-shaped volume exhibits no motion relative to the table and no motion relative to the patient, until the block-shaped volume is disposed at an opposite edge of the homogeneity volume, in combination with the remaining limitations of the claims.

Claim 6 is allowed, as the prior art of record does not teach or suggest a magnetic resonance imaging apparatus for angiographic MRI scanning of a body of a patient, including simultaneously uniformly shifting the phase-coding gradient and the frequency-coding gradient in conformity with moving the table so that the block-shaped volume exhibits no motion relative to the table and no motion relative to the patient, until the block-shaped volume is disposed at an opposite edge of the homogeneity volume, in combination with the remaining limitations of the claim.

Claim 7 is allowed, as the prior art of record does not teach or suggest a computer program product for operating a magnetic resonance imaging apparatus for angiographic MRI scanning of a body of a patient lying on a table, using a magnetic resonance imaging apparatus having a basic field magnet that generates a basic magnetic field in a homogeneity volume, an RF system and a gradient system, said computer program product being loadable into a control computer of the magnetic resonance imaging apparatus and programming the control computer to, including simultaneously uniformly shifting the phase-coding gradient and the frequency-coding gradient in conformity with moving the table so that the block-shaped volume exhibits no motion relative to the table and no motion relative to the patient, until the block-shaped volume is disposed at an opposite edge of the homogeneity volume, in combination with the remaining limitations of the claim.
